New Book Carp Cove Press

Ellen Jane Vennard left the safety and security of her family and home to travel the world at a time when most women did not. From her birthplace in Carlingford, Ireland she traveled to Scotland, India and England before finally settling in America. Yet all of her travels had not prepared her for what lay ahead and at a young age she was widowed, left to raise three young daughters by herself in the strange new place called New York City. Although she would never see her mother or homeland again, Ellen Jane survived the trials of everyday life as a single parent, working to feed herself and her children while instilling in them the importance of love, family and determination.

Vennard Genealogy from Carlingford, Ireland to America by M. Barbara Buckland

This is an important genealogical work by for the Vennard family, tracing the descendants of Huguenot, Henry Vennard, from the 1700's to 2004. M. Barbara Buckland has also transcribed the stories passed down over three generations of her Irish grandmother's life, Ellen Jane Vennard (Elliott) (Shetler), in a warm and touching way that will transport you back to a time when the life of Irish emigrants held challenges of their own. This historical text covers the history of the Huguenots flee from France on St. Bartholomew's Eve. It also includes over 260 digitally restored photos and documents, including military records, birth, death, marriage and trans-Atlantic crossing records. Variations on the Vennard name are: Venard, Vinard, Vineyard and Vanard. Also included are the family names of McBurney, Meek, Elliott, Shetler, Lang and Buckland.
